MESCE MEWTON'S OPINION

NEW YORK, NOV 10—[Special]—Hor Heber Newton took another new departure resterday from the ordinary custom of Episcopalian clerky, no praching a political seamon, in which he gave some extraordin my advice to cleveland in the event of his entering the presidential office. He said "Let him not take counsel of his lower nature, and say, my private life is maught to this people if I serve them well in my public trust." The suspicion that it was low and vile has well nigh cost him the grandest throse on earth. I confess to utter surprise at the 'anguage of one of the leading evening papers of the country, the Post, a paper which sets itself up as an especial teacher of morals, and as for some of the platform talk of the first pulpit preacher of this land, flev Mr Beecher, language fails me Let us hope his words have been miss ated Provided you have you may, with clear judgment, accept Eleveland for the new office, under protect, and such protest surely has been made in the small clurality by which the president-elect creeps not the White house.

Kingstos, Nov 113—In regard to fraud in the fifth ward, no con est will be made to-morrow by the republicans. The Freeman, the leading epublican paper, this evening says. The vote in the Fifth ward having been represented through out the whole state as frandulent, it is only fair to both parties that the whole truth concerning it should at once be made known. The full electoral ballot box was found to contain ninety-one ballots more than east, according to the pollist, and that excess of voke was drawn out by a man blindfolded, in accordance with the laws if the state. If fraid was intended the parties falled to accomplish what they desired. The republican party has no reason to find fault with the result of the vote, as it gives cleveland only 250 majority, which is only the ordinary vote. The roll was carefully watched on election day, and the result, as declared by the inspectors, apparently gives each party what it is entitled to CLEVELAND WAS "RAINFED."

"Can't afford the luxury"

"Can't afford it?" rejoined the jeweler "How much, now, do you suppose, that is worth?" and he turned the stones so that they seemed to fairly blaze with lustre. The writer guessed $10,000 "We syours for $3.50," rejoined the jeweler, "and I am making 20 per cent. new Yee, it's un actual fact. The stones are boyus and the gold is so thin that it will wear off in twenty-four hours, but the stones are the finest ever brought to this country, as out glass they are beyond enticesm and thereby hangs a tale."

"Some months ago I received a note from a lady customer of mise, who lives beyond the borders of the United States and to whom I have sold thousands of dollars' worth of gems, that she would be in the city in a "ew days and warted to see me at such a time. I was on han! pimethally, and, after some preliminary conversation, she told me that it was imperative that she should raise $100,000, and wished me to negotiate the oan. I knew the ratue of the goods she had, so I googbed the offer and took the casked, and the next day sont them to! a broker friend of mine, to whom I should look for he money. I thought nothing more about it, at that night the I roker came in and said Joern, it I didn't know you so well I should have come around with an officer." "What do lot mean?" and I then to me?" he asked "No,! I replied "I thought nothing more about "No,! I replied "I thought not," he rejoined "They are all bogus, and I came within one of advancing the money on them." I was thunderstruck and would not believe it, but "he soon convenced me, and I went over the gems to find the solutions." I had sold my customer."

BOGUS ORMS

"I packed them up and we both started for her house I was uslered in and after I made my statement my lady looked at my for a moment and then to my stonishment burst into a fit of rage and accused me of having sold her bogus gems. She threatened to call the police and I found myself in at least a disagreenile silpation, but finally she sohered down and I told her she had no sees a mylicitude. told ber she had no case against me, as always in making a sale of valuable stones. I had the geme marked and at least twenty persons could in making a sale of valuable stones, I had the geme marked and at least twenty persons could swear in court that I had delivered them to her in the first place of correct weight and vidue. I then asked her if any one had access to them besides herself and scon found that her son and husband had the handling of them. The did gentleman I did not suspect, but a week later I found that the son was leading a fast life in New York and within a year had spent a large amount of money. So to come to the point I met him and with a detective charged him with it and bub him we knew all about it. He gase in at once and seemed glad to tell all he knew, and the trap that fellow had walked into was a cantion. He found that he had false into the hunds of a gang of counterfeiters and they had used him as a tool and he brought the gems to them, had then replaced by bogus ones and had been peld well for it. But the curious part of it was that though he said he had seen the montime and time again, he could not take me therebase it was on a vessel. Every time he met them he was taken off the same way. THE BAGE FOR FANCY GETS.

"The Tage for fancy gems is still unabate i, and a curnous thing it.s. Five years ago it was somewhet difficult to get a lady to wear a criored stone, but now not only the ledies but every man of fashion has his cat's-use, rubies, emeradds etc. They are generally set in rings, flat and mixed up in every way, so as to lock odd and give fine effects of lustre. Here is a ring I am making for a Cul an gentleman hes its only a ext's-eye, but I value it at $1,300, and when finished the ling will be worth $2,500 cat's-eyes are likely to be worth as much as dia monds. The finder was a peer boy who never held a came before, but I e was sharp enough to take to a jeweler of repu'e—Raspola, I think, of Rome—who paid him what was a fortune in that country it finally went to Parist, if e French jeweler, who sold it for $31,000. A make to throught $23,000, and is in the collection of the French rown jewels, and as many of these will indoubledly find their way to this country you may see at yet. It's a wonderful some and is the most remarkable initiation of organic matter ever seen. The sale of the French rown jewels is an important one, and I guess every jewels is an important one, and I guess every jewels of rote has had orders to attend the sale. You know there are a number of specialists among very rich men that have collections of geme, and they are always on the lookout for rare nes. The opportunity presented by the sale of the crown jewels is rare one. How much are they worth? Well, I belsev, at the assessment after the revolution of 1759 they were valued at about four and a half milhous. They consisted of 506 pearls, 20 rubies, 150 emeralid, 154 sapphires, 71 to azers, 8 garnets, 8 ameliyets and 7,482 dimmonifs. After this they were stolen from the treasury where they were kept and only a small part "ecowered".

and only a small part "secoured A MAGNIFICENT COLLECTION"

But the Bourbon kings and Nappleon were great to ers of gems and added to the collection, so that it was estimated at negrety five millions. The last inventory, that of 1875, showed that this magnificent collection was composed of 77,485 stones, weighing nearly 20,000 carats, and it is on these that the public is to be allowed to had of course, there will be some reservation, but among them are many extremely rare stones of greathist rical value. Thus you can bid on a lot that belonged to the Duchess Anne of Britany, They "ell to the Fronch grown when she married Carles VIII. There is also a one lot that formerly belonged to Cardinal Richelieu Especially in the diamonds French crowd when she married Charles VIII. There is also a nine lot that former y belonged to Cardinal Richelte Especially in the diamonds will there be some fine offers. Thus you can had on six diamonds it at with one more form a set of historica stones, being the first ones over cut. They were bought in Italy by (ardinal Muzarin and were worn by Luis Xi. There six stones alone are estimated by an expert to be worth $200,000. If has been claimed, continued the expert, "that some of the crown jewels are missing, but this is a mistake, as many of the genes used by the royal family were personal property. Thus, Marie Antoinetts rarely work any crown jewels, the exception being the collection of acorn-shaped stones now for sale. These she arranged as stomachers, bracelets, etc., but the magnificent algrettes that she wore were her personal property and are now the property of the Fuchess d'Angouleme, while others, valued a hundreds of thousands of dollars, she distributed among her particular frien is "The present tage "or fancy gems is merely the restrain of the craze that was started for them by the Empress Josephine. She was particularly fond of colored diamonds and had a murvelous collection, which she used lavishly In her pictures you will often see her represented with a band of gems or pearls across her forchess. She also wore some fine sapphress and rubles, especially in the day time, thinking that they made her complexion darker. If the gems that are to be so'd could speak they would tell a strange story of the old days. The pearls of the collection were worn often by Queen Amelia, wife of Louis Phillippe. If a princess of the Orieans family married, she was presented with a complete set of dimmonds, adapted to all kinds of uses. These were to be worn in the Tuillenes. Those of the Duchess de Membens er were themes and the married of the Duchess de Membens er were themes as the married for their purty. The jewels were also added to by presents, and the unique set of emeralds to be sold was a prit from the Spanisk court. Of all the ladies of the French curt Engente wore jewels the most, and the fashions the set put a good many dollars in the pockets of English and French jewelers. She had the finest set of pea is known and has them yet I believe. They were used as a stomacher, or could be arranged to almost cover a long train.

"The diadem of diamonds and turquoises included in the sale was worn by her. She had at one time the finest collection of forms in Europe, but has sold some of the chalcest. But the main cause of their relief, which has proved to be permanent was the change of method which about but I me was introduced. These farmers had be a rusual wheat and corn for distant markets, that in the Atlante Sates or in Large, pursuing the sin method as that which has prevailed in one gon, except that they had not study copy missed. one. But the soil fr in successive croppings had ceased to yield abunda ifly of wheat, and the ceased to yield abundantly of wheat, and the cost of sending condition thank markets were so great if it only in experition in yers reading money is made from either of these stables. The farmers were grainably gitting deeper and deeper in debt for a grainfurnit made interpy, for his a and supplies of yer as sorts, and the retries of country as becoming larger and the retries of country as becoming larger. pear is star, until as we have stated the country at arge wes in the very of him rujus. It had to intered the fits of early country of which we have business it knowledge whose chief an aimor exclusive resource was the chief in an of exclusive resource was the exportate of the products. The southern states of this union which had been exporting two cotton for many heavy, were all virtually bankrapt at the beginning of the criti war, and if the war had not enforced figuration, it must have soon come through the peaceful process of The farmers in Illi tols and low t were wise enoug to adopt the mir probable method of forming in time 1) save themselves from the necessity of gimens liquidation. This also doned wheat culture for the most part, and doned wheat culture for the most part, and turned their non-into leef, and pork and at the same time began to rise more regetalles and fruit for their two consumption and for the local nurkers, which sprung up with the morease of population that followed their change of method. The large wheat and corn fields were divided up into smaller farms and although there has not yet began mirroddeed into these Mississiphi states the system of method from the part of the production of their farming. Mississippi states the system of mich farming Amissimply states the system of high inframing which pricials to a great extent in the older castern states, the endency is in hat direction As a result the farmure have rapidly a bance demonstered properties, and by he facts we of pupulation it his social and civil conditions have been rantly improved. My companion, Jones, laughed heartily at the mention of the old name, and said. "But to you mean to say you we never heard the yart?

Well I was very nearly letting the cat out of the when I was even hear) techniq into an out-of-bag straight off, but as you evidently don't know anything about it, fill vour pipe again at i I'll tell you Mind, it's a bit egotistical, but since you've inked me to tell you the story you must it accuse me of blowing my own trumpet, or of laking about matters which molest men generally leave to other people to talk about, low'll be astonished when you hear the end

So we refilled our pipes and Jopes began. Thou know that Smith was always a great-trend of mine, that is to say we lunched to-sucher in the city overy day at a famous old conclung lin, in Bishopsgale street, which has some time since gone the way of most of the famous old coaching inns. Smith was a very good fellow, but he had a venk point, and the undue prominence of this weak point at all laces and under all prounstances caused him places and under all 'nroun-gances caused min to be looked upon as an insufferable bore. How-ever as he possessed a great number of good points and as he was old enough to be my father, and held inther a prominent position in the city of London, and could give me excel-lent course and help me materially in my the ward strongles as juntor partner in a young city house, I winked at smith, the bore, and stack to smith the houset, exterpressed, and good pre-

"Later on, however I did go for my holiday I had been very hard worked during the past year and I felt in need of genuine rest and recreation—that rest and recreation which are dened these who employ their amoust breathing stace in hurrying and scarrying over countries and towns at highting page and whose time is occupted in preking and unpacking in extehning sternards and irdins, in squabibling with land leads and a name long bills.

"I naturally furned round, and beheld one of the fairest, freshest specimens of English girl hood that I had ever even imagined in seen depicted in canvas. She was dressed in a light dress of pink something or other which set off less supple, rounded figure to its very best, and a while hat (cl ip hat, is it?) formed a pleasant contrast to the clusters of wavy brown half which fell on her neck and nesslied above the gentlest and healthlest of faces, ""Yery well my dear Enid, said mamma, a big, resolute-looking lady "but pray be careful, for the sea is high, and that horrid horn has been going all the morning." "Never feat, mamins dear," said Miss Enid. I can swim tike a duck, you know," And she tripped off down to the sands.

"I am not a masher, and it is not one of the chef it ms in my holiday programme to sit and watch the girls bathing, especially when they are stirred as in England in those horrible blue shrouds which we call bathing dresses, but I confess that I crossed the jotty to watch the movements of Miss Enid, because I had grown suddenly interested in hor. wen, mere are swerat appwers to this ques-tion, and which is the right one it is difficult to cetermine. Some dealers think that the present political excitement has much to do with it, and doubtless in certain ways this is true. Others contract that ever-production in specified I ass of manufacture has drugged the market. (there suggest that it is only the natural calm which brenches the coming threatment id.) Wh. there precedes the coming Christmas tide. Whatever it may be, there is no doubt, in the general it may be, there is no doubt, in the general fund, that sagamation in business circles is the rule and not he exception. A very map riant element here is the higsiness done in the theaters. With very few exceptions, and in those for obnous reasons theatrical business is worse the least than it has been for many years previous. This is nitributed by thoughtful in magers solely, a political excitement, and one of them Last ight said, in answer to a puestion about it. Why, of course, we are doing a bad trancess. So are all the theaters, and there is a very good reason for it. I take no stock at all in the idea that people do not go to the theaters do well. Then it is that men seek something that will change the current of their thoughts. All loy long they work and grand and worry and study, and they come home at night disheatened and disappointed, and, however pleasant their hotness may be, however thoughtful and considerate their families may be, they find I am impossibility to take their unions from their business. At such these men act in one of two wars—they either take to drink or go to in the theater and one cos a about as much as it other, with the advantage in favor of the theater that the man can take like wife, his firmit or his friends with him, and for two or three hours lose himself absolutely in the unreal, so that the actual is, for the time being regulation of them. Itmus writes that the real c to of churches is Montreal. Here the mother church rules and reigns. Not in Rome itself would one find a much greater preponderance of the Roman Catholic religion and its temples, its symbols, and its constant observances. Montreal is largely built of gray grante, and the great cathedral-like churches, to, say nothing of the convents and puter religious establish ments, are of the same impressive and fitting material. How many there are I know not, but those we have visite; greatly impressed our party by their spleador and size. The Cathedral is that part cutar church, he it large or small, in which the Bisnop has his chair. In Montreal the Cathedra is in process of construc-tion, and the lower part of its year and strange looking round towe (of granite) can already looking round towe- (of grants) can alread; be seen from distint parts of the gity. Nobody can adequately imagine or realize, without seeing it, the ornate, loft, and grand effect of all this beautiful interior architecture, with its weath of pright colors shown in clustered column rest endent sanctuar; and tow ting that and in the lofty grobal arches, making a make of ornamental lines, far up to be the people in the pews. One feels, before an alvzing the effect of the great altar, its gleaming owers reaching to the very ceiling, and spendid in their blazerty of gold, and their scriptural figures and groups, the gibed galdernes for the priceis, and altar boys, the special gallernes for the priceis, and altar boys, the special gallernes for the nuns, and the all arisanps swung from the far ceiling, and their lights (hept ever birning, year after year) see not be gently and slown moving, with an almost imperceptible more meant and pendulum with ct. It is all one great blaze of rich but harmons us cors, gold predor making. The oriel sky will done the diffective while the mices of pointed and gilded arches, springing far above more and galleries, take the eye captive and in voluntarily.

pointed and gilded arches, springing for above more and galleries, take the cree captive and in voluntarily.

Bere people are coming and going from dawn to night—some knaeling at particular shrues in tarnous parts of the interior, others silently say by their prayers in the paws. The noise of the carpenters at work, with hammer and saw, among some of the central pows makes no interruption of the levotions. Men and women silently come in, kneel an instant on one knee, toward the great altar with its figures and groups of the crutifizion and the crowning of the virgin, enter a pew, remain some time in silent devotion, go out of the pew, agait bend its knee afterward and silently depart. Recently a funeral mass and two other masses were going on at different narts of this great in erior at the same time in the early morning hour. At one time there were a wedding, a funeral and the regular morning service all going on stimultineously, and so far as any continusion was concerned they were as free from it as they would have been performed in three wile-ly separated parts of the city. The church was built to sent ten thousand people and built as many more could be got in by using the size is the act of worship is performed almost jubiley as the work in the streets, and seemingly with as little regard to the lockers-on. Such is he case in all the great Catholic churches of Zurope, but Montreal seems to Justifate the custom.

1864, when Henry D Morse of Boston showed what a lankee could do at at. Since then the business of cutting diamonds has spread largely from the efforts of workmen amported or taught by aim, and now there are many workshops in America, chiefly in the large cities, where dis-mends are cut to order. The tariff has seen ad-justed so as to fister the discond cutting indus-try here. Uncut diamonds may be imposed duty free, but a heavy duty is imposed on the cut stores.

duty free, but a heavy duty is imposed on the cut stones. The modern process of ciamond cutting a much the same as that which has been followed for centuries. The wages paid the workmen are about the same as those paid to first-class working jew-lens. Mr. Morse has a machine of his own meantion which he uses and which he he letteres is an improvement on the old method he mo into two diamonds in a sort of double lathe, using one against the other. This is a close initialized the old hand method, in which the diamonds are cemented each at the end of a side, or handle, and rubbec together with a strong pressure.

The diamond dust which results from this process, and is used in cleaving and polishing diamonds, is called bort. It is also made by puivernang small or imperfed i diamonds which are of hitle value for cutting. The ingenuity of jewelers has been taxed to that use for the small chanond chips that come off in cleaving. Some of these chips are used for cluster diamond where y Many are used to represent the eyes of birds or animals. The range for solitaire stones of late rears has filled the market with cheap clipping:

When Mr. Morse cut the big Virginia diamond in Boston in 1853, most jewelers doubted the possibility of quiting ciamonds in this country, but grantly the inevitable law of trade special diself, and so profitable a business could not longer be monopolized shread. Lioun Fledge, an eminent latisticancof Phil adaphia, disares that English mail steamers carrying lesters from the United States to South Airestea have thrown them overboard. He says that their ebject is to prevent our merchants from communicating with Son h Americans and establishing trade with them. The charge is a serious one and should receive the attention of the government. If English are can not main ian their South American trade without resorting to such a practice, they must be made to abandon it. The integrity of our letters should be preserved.
